Part I Reading Comprehension

SCHOOL OF THE AIRBig country, small population

Australia is an enormous country, but it has a population of only 20 million. Some families live on big, isolated farms, hundreds of kilometres from a town or city. Children from these families can't travel to school every day, so many of them use a special school: the Australian School of the Air.

Schools without classrooms

There are twelve Schools of the Air in Australia and over 1,000 students use them. Students of the School of the Air study the same subjects as other Australian students, but they don't have lessons in classrooms with other students. They study at home on their own. The teachers at the School of the Air prepare lessons and send them to the students by post or email. The students have to work on these lessons for five or six hours a day, Monday to Friday. They send their work to the teachers once a week and discuss it by radio or over the internet. They can also borrow books from the school library. The books arrive by post.

A chance to meet

Once or twice a year, a teacher visits every student at home. The teacher spends a day with the student, helps them with their work and discusses problems. The teacher often has dinner with the family and stays for a night at the student's house. Teachers and students can also meet at the Sports Carnival. This takes place once a year on playing fields in Alice Springs. Students don't have to go, but it is a great way for them to do sport together and to make friends. 'I study on my own,' says one student, 'but I'm not lonely. My teachers are very friendly, and I chat to them quite often. I email other students most days, too. And I love the annual Sports Carnival!'
